YES Institute envisions a community in which all youth develop as healthy individuals free of suicide, violence, and discrimination.

Interns at YES Institute have the opportunity to film and create videos for social media and our online courses, design and develop content for our online newsletters and website.

We are seeking individuals who are interested in developing their professional and personal communication skills through film, technology and community engagement that makes a difference.

For more information call Tim Wagoner at 305-663-7195. Apply online at yesinstitute.org/interns.
